The Green Read: How coronavirus could help us save our planet

https://www.aljazeera.com/indepth/features/green-read-coronavirus-save-planet-200412072241374.html

The article discusses how the Earth is the only place for life. There I no other planet or universe that has been discovered by humans to know if there could be life possible there. But even after knowing that we have only one planet to live, we keep destroying it. And after the pandemic, things have gotten better. For the envirnoment, for the earth.

Lesser noise pollution, lesser light pollution, lesser air pollution. Just lesser pollution in general. Stars are visible in the night sky now, as bright as ever and even amidst the cities. The cities that used to have the highest air pollution, have now dropped to a new low. China for example.

The Earth is now cleaning but is it going to be the same way. When, hopefully, this pandemic ends, will we go back to ruining our planet?