

Down Memory Lane

I tried creating a zine that consists set of still images with some of them being animated frame by frame. In Print form these digitally animated visuals would have to be animated manually by moving one of the two paper (the bottom one under each animated illustration). This collection is a reflection of my childhood. Stories I grew up with. Just like a set of visuals can tell a narrative without words.

I used these stories to give a little insight as to what they meant to me. I remember cuddling close to my grandmother in middle of the day, she would start with a story and dose off right in the middle of the plot twist. Leaving me with my imagination to run wild. The visuals for the stories I came up then are still vividly present in my mind along with the stories being told in hushed voice and .

The folder consists of 2 videos (Final 2 is a continuation of Finall)
